

ABSTRACT

A topical application of omentum, preferably in a cream form, that takes advantage of the healing properties of omentum for the treatment of topical maladies. An internal application of omentum for the treatment of internal maladies, such as ulcers. And a method of processing the mammalian omentum for topical or internal application.